

MARGINALISED

Due to your gender or ethnic background, you usually have to work harder to prove yourself or get your voice heard in your community. You suffer prejudice at every turn, especially when working in non-traditional roles. You and your opinion are generally overlooked, and your professional qualifications are often questioned by those who don't know you. You often hear that certain tasks or positions are considered 'unsuitable' for you simply due to your background.

Effect

You suffer a -2 penalty to all social interactions based on your profession, and often have to remind people of your credentials.
